

Small Selwyn

A hexagonal lantern in the George IV Gothic style with curved upper supports terminating in a crown of finely wrought trefoil. Above the glass panes is further trefoil ornamentation, this time larger, the trefoil theme running throughout the lantern like faded fleur-de-lis. Beneath the lantern, the six points of the hexagon are embellished by turned finials. Shown in distressed gilt finish, this lantern is available in a variety of hand finishes, each complimenting its Georgian refinement.
